

Solution to Last Month's Quiz

DRIVEN TO DRINK

1. DRAMBUIE A sweet, golden coloured liqueur
2. GRENADE A non-alcoholic bar syrup
3. COINTREAU An orange liqueur
4. MARASCHINO A strong, sweet liqueur made from a variety of small bitter cherries
5. TRIPLE SEC A type of strong, sweet and colorless orange-flavored liqueur.
6. ANISETTE An anise-flavored liqueur
7. IRISH MIST A brown whiskey liqueur
8. BENEDICTINE An herbal liqueur produced in France
9. SAMBUCA An Italian anise-flavored, usually colorless, liqueur
10. CHARTREUSE An aromatic liqueur, usually yellow or green

TARGET DATE FOR Next Month's Contributions or Questions for Aaron.

December 20, 2020

Please reach us with your articles, news or ideas at 344 Bowfin, (650 572-9153) or email us at JERRYANDEVE@COMCAST.NET

or by adding a NOTE on our Facebook Page or our website: BOWFININQUIRER.COM

This Month's Quiz

ASCENDING TO THE HEIGHTS

Warning: you may find this a tall order! Put these 10 U.S. Presidents in sequence, shortest to tallest, by their heights (my source for this was the Internet – hopefully an accurate site)

1. Chester A. Arthur
2. George W. Bush
3. Gerald R. Ford
4. James Madison
5. Jimmy Carter
6. Lyndon Johnson
7. Martin Van Buren
8. Ronald Reagan
9. Theodore Roosevelt
10. Thomas Jefferson

Should this prove helpful, their heights are: 5' 4" ;
5' 6" ; 5' 9.5" ; 5' 10" ; 5' 11.5" ; 6' 0" ; 6' 1" ; 6' 2" ;
6' 2.5" ; and 6' 3.5"

Aaron's Answers (continued from p. 1):

Many petroglyphs were used to show territory markings, such as carving spears and bones onto a rock to show what would happen to trespassers.

The word petroglyph is based off of the Greek word "petra", meaning rock. This root word can be found in words such as petroleum, and the very common name, Peter, and you may recall that my last report was on an ancient city in Jordan called Petra.

Petroglyphs cover the sides of these hills

Consider Supporting
Food Banks/ Arts Organizations/Small Businesses/Educational Institutions/Charities

by Jerry Lerman (344)

With the many blows that 2020 has landed on our nation and the world, we may all be struggling to some degree. However, if we are fortunate enough to have the capacity to support local worthy causes, there could hardly be a more urgent time to do so!

Prominent among our giftees this year has been the local live theater company, the Hillbarn Theatre. One of our gifts to them proved to be reciprocal! We won their silent auction for a luncheon for six with Congresswoman Jackie Speier at a socially-safe distance, poolside at the lovely Hillsborough home of one of Hillbarn's board members. On October 20th, Eve and I joined a group of four friends with whom we've been dining and theater-going for more than a decade to have a wonderful midday meal and interesting conversation with the Congresswoman.

To see what's up with the Hillbarn Theatre in these post-Covid days, check out their Twitch activities, which have included weekly Name That Tune contests! You'll find information and the opportunity to donate on their website –

<https://www.hillbarntheatre.org/donate/>

